Dear Parents/Guardians,

I am writing to share that Lynn Public Schools will continue having early release days as we did last year. The dismissal times for all Lynn Public Schools on the selected early release days are listed below. As part of the collective bargaining agreement with the Lynn Teachers Union once per month (with the exception of March, which will be two and June there will be none) students will be dismissed early to allow time for professional development and common planning in the schools. This will take effect beginning September 21, 2022. We understand that this will impact families and after-school care, so we are communicating early to allow time for planning.

Early Release Schedule SY 22-23

As we did last year on early release days, students will receive breakfast, lunch, and classroom instruction as they normally would, just on an abbreviated schedule. In the event of a weather-related cancellation on an early release day, it will not be rescheduled. Building principals are fully apprised of this effort and can support you with any questions/concerns.

Finally, early release days are school days and every school day is important. We appreciate your partnership in ensuring that students attend on these days as they would any other school day.

Yours together in partnership,

Debra Ruggiero
Superintendent of Schools
